Starting Up

1. Set up the Genesis System and plug in Control Pad 1. For 2 player games, plug in Control Pad 2 also.

2. Make sure the power switch is OFF. Insert Evander Holyfield's "Real Deal" Boxing game cartridge into the console and press it down firmly.

3. Turn the power switch ON. In a few moments the Sega screen will appear.

4. Press Start when the Title screen appears.

Important:
- If you don’t see the Sega screen, turn the power switch OFF. Make sure the Genesis System is set up correctly and the cartridge is firmly inserted in the console. If the system is connected to a TV, make sure it’s tuned to the correct channel (3 or 4). Then turn the power switch ON again.
- Always make sure the power switch is OFF before inserting or removing the Genesis game cartridge.

Put Your Gloves on "The Real Deal"

The bell gongs and you dance forward, gloves up. You hardly see the crowd packing the house in the haze beyond the ring. You barely hear the ref call "Box!" You’re staring at your opponent.

He is the ultimate fighting machine. Steady dark eyes that see your punches before you throw them. Massive shoulders sloping into rock-hard muscles. Arms as long as ring ropes, ending in $50 million fists.

This is just the beginning. It’s going to be a long 12 rounds. If you can go the distance.

The hours of training, the hard fights, the will to win . . . they were all worth it. Because now you’re challenging the best — the very best — fighter on earth. World Heavyweight Champion Evander Holyfield!

Quick Start

Use this Quick Start to get right into your first fight. You'll play a 1 Player game against the computer, or 2 Player competition, using Set 1 boxing controls (listed on page 5). Go on to the later sections of this manual when you're ready to follow "The Real Deal" into a genuine, million-dollar (or more) boxing career!

1. Watch the opening screens.
   These screens include hot facts about Evander Holyfield's career, followed by a game demo. All you have to do is turn on your Genesis, sit back and relax.

2. Press the Start button.
   Doing this brings up the Main Menu. If you press Start during a demo fight, you'll go to the Title screen. Press Start again to get to the Main Menu.
   Note: On most menu and sub-menu screens, you can also press Button A, B or C instead of the Start button.

   On the Main Menu, press the D-Button DOWN to move the boxing glove to the Exhibition Fight option. Then press Start.

4. Choose a player mode.
   On the Play Mode screen, move the boxing glove to either 1P VS CPU (to play against the computer) or to 1P VS 2P (for 2 Player competition). Press Start to go on to Boxer Selection.

5. Display your boxer with the D-Button, and then press Start.

Player 1 Boxer

Computer/Player 2 Boxer

Rounds Selection Line

The bars below the picture show the boxer's power, stamina, speed and defense levels. No two fighters have the same balance of skills, though some will be more evenly matched than others.

For your first fight you might pick a contender like J.D. LeForge. He's a good all-around fighter with fairly equal skill levels, though he's strongest in power and defense. He hits hard and can take a lot of punishment in return before he goes down.

When you see the boxer you want, press the Start button. The highlight selector will move to the other boxer on the right.
6. Display an opponent with the D-Button, and then press Start.
The fighter on the right is your opponent (either the computer’s or Player 2’s boxer). Scroll through these challengers by pressing the D-Button UP/DOWN.

Look for an opponent who’s ranked somewhat higher than your boxer. (Boxing ranks appear at the top of the screen.) By challenging someone who’s more skilled than your boxer, you’ll always fight to the best of your abilities.

Also, the opponent’s skills should offer a good foil to your fighter’s skills. For example, C.M. Berfield is a good match for J.D. LeForge. With his higher stamina and speed, Berfield can withstand the beating he’ll take from LeForge’s powerful punches.

Press Start when you see the boxer you want. The highlight will move to the Rounds Selection line.

7. Set the number of rounds you will fight.
The number of rounds in the bout is set at three. But you can choose any number of rounds from 1 to 12 in Exhibition Fight mode. Change the setting by pressing the D-Button RIGHT/LEFT.

8. Press Start to begin the bout.
Pressing Start takes you to the ring. Pressing Button A, B or C moves the highlight selector back to Player 1’s boxer, and gives you the chance to change your selection.

From this point on, use Button A, B or C to move the highlight from one option to the next, so you can change them if you want. Press Start when you’re ready to begin the fight.

Note: When you see the flashing message “Press Start to Quit,” you can press Start to return to the Title screen.

Fight Night!
The main event starts with a rundown of the contenders’ fight records. And there’s the bell! The two sluggers square off, and whatever happens next is up to you!

The button controls give you an almost unlimited range of punches and combinations. The Set 1 controls below are in effect when you first play the game.

D-BUTTON CONTROLS

- Move forward/back: Press RIGHT/LEFT
- Circle backward: Press UP/DOWN + away from opponent
- Crouch: Press DOWN
- Straighten up: Press UP

Note: Try all three sets of button controls to find the one that suits you best. For details, see page 29.

Hints from “The Real Deal”

- A jab is a powerful straight punch. Stay at arm’s length and throw two or three quick jabs with the same hand. This gets your opponent blocking on one side. Then follow through with a lightning jab or hook to his undefended side. Like this: left... left... right!
- Crouch and pummel your opponent with body jabs. When he bends to block your punches, quickly straighten up and hit his undefended face with an uppercut.
- Keep your guard up. Always block when you’re not attacking. Don’t leave your face or body open.

Energy

Energy indicators at the bottom of the screen show how each fighter is holding up.

Energy Gauge:
- The Energy Gauge shows a boxer’s overall energy. The red and black bars in the gauge decrease as the fighter tires.
- The red bar shows a boxer’s immediate energy. The more stamina he has, the faster the red bar recovers when he’s not taking punches. If the bar disappears, the fighter falls to the mat.
- The black bar measures a fighter’s ability to take punches. The shorter it gets, the fewer punches it takes to knock the fighter down.
- The black bar can recover somewhat as the boxer rests between rounds. The red bar cannot recover beyond the length of the black bar.

Body and Head Damage:
- The Body and Head Damage indicators turn gray from the top down as a contender takes blows to those areas. The indicators can recover energy between rounds.
- When either indicator turns completely gray, it starts flashing. The boxer is now too damaged to continue the fight. As soon as he takes a few more punches, the referee will end the bout and call a TKO.
Overhead Cam View

In Evander Holyfield's "Real Deal" Boxing, you're in the ring! You're circling in incredible 360° action, pummeling your opponent from corner to corner, or getting blocked yourself up against the ropes.

Keep track of your ring position by glancing at the Overhead Cam view at the top of the screen. You'll see the two fighters in the ring. You'll also see a ringside camera that follows the boxers' moves around the canvas. Your screen view is always the same as the view from the ringside cam.

Round Time

Each round lasts three minutes. If the boxers get in a clinch, the referee will call "Break!" The clock keeps running while the opponents step back. When the ref calls "Box!" you can start slugging again.

Hints from "The Real Deal"

- Jabs land on air when you're fighting in close. Instead, throw hooks or uppercuts.
- Avoid clinches by stepping back or circling backward. Keep your opponent off-guard with a flurry of hooks, and then follow through with a hard straight jab or two as you backpedal.

A bell signals the end of the round, and the contenders retreat to their corners. Statistics for both fighters appear after each round. You’ll see the number of punches thrown in the round, the number that connected, and the percent that landed. Both fighters also receive a score for the round.

During the break, both boxers can regain some energy. The fight resumes in a few moments when the referee calls "Box!"

Knockout!

A fighter who doesn’t defend himself is in big trouble. So is one who’s matched unfairly against a much more powerful opponent. A fighter in these dire straits will take so much bruising that he’ll be knocked down. And then the ten count begins.
When this happens to your boxer, start pressing Button A fast and repeatedly. Your fighter will begin recovering energy. Then, when you see the prompt, press Button C to get your contender on his feet and back to the fight.

If a boxer is knocked down three times in one round, the ref ends the match and calls a technical knockout. If a boxer is knocked down and can't stand up, the bout is over and the ref calls a knockout.

Pause Game

Press Start any time during a bout to pause the game and halt the fight clock. You can then choose to either resume the game or quit. Press the D-Button LEFT/RIGHT to highlight your choice on screen, and then press Start.

Resuming a game continues the fight and the fight clock. Quitting a game takes you back to the Title screen.

Hints from “The Real Deal”

- Combinations count! A jab-jab-uppercut is a quick combination that's easy to learn. And it gets results.
- Another effective combination is a hard straight to the face, followed by a fast crouch and body blow. Then move in quick as you straighten up and deliver a knockdown hook.
- Never let your boxer get to the point of being knocked down. Start by making sure he's matched against a fighter he has a fair chance of beating. And watch his energy indicators. You can always back your fighter off to give him a chance to recover energy, or even to run some seconds off the clock.

“And the Winnah Is . . .”

The referee announces the winner at the end of the contest. The victor is the fighter who has the highest total score at the end of the bout. A fighter can also overcome his opponent with an actual or technical knockout.

A stats rundown at the end of each fight shows the contenders' scores per round, and their total scores for the match.

Press Start or Button A, B or C to return to the Main Menu on the Title screen.
Career Boxing

You can bring a slugger up through the ranks and buff him up into a heavyweight champ. As his skills improve, he can fight for bigger purses against more and more powerful challengers. After each prizefight, your budding champion can train in the areas you choose, increasing his power, stamina, speed and defense.

The crowds multiply with each new fight. Your boxer is building a reputation — and a following. Soon he's muscling through the ropes to trade punches with the top-ranked fighters in the world. And then one sweet afternoon, to a packed house, he faces "The Real Deal" himself, World Heavyweight Champion Evander Holyfield.

Starting a Career

To begin a career, press Start at the Title screen to bring up the Main Menu. Move the boxing glove to the Career Mode option and press Start.

Note: You can press Button A, B or C instead of Start on the Main Menu and the Career Mode sub-menus.

Creating a Boxer

Now you're at the Boxer Creation screen. This is where you'll put together a mean fighting machine.

On this menu screen, press the D-Button UP/DOWN to move between options. Press it LEFT/RIGHT to change an option's setting. Press Start when your contender is buffed and ready for his debut fight.

Name:
Use the D-Button to move the selector box in the alphabet grid. Press Button A, B or C to place the letter that's in the box on the Name line. Once you place the letter, the cursor in the Name line automatically moves to the right.

Choose the right-pointing arrow in the grid to move the cursor another space to the right, creating a blank space in your boxer's name. Choose the left-pointing arrow to erase blank spaces and characters to the left.

Press Start or select End in the alphabet grid to go to the next option.
Right Handed, Left Handed:
The setting you choose determines your fighter’s dominant hand, the one that packs the power.

Head, Skin, Hair and Trunks:
Create the ultimate pugilist! Watch your boxer change as you press the D-Button LEFT/RIGHT on these options. With the wide range of choices, you can model your heavyweight after a real person, or fashion your own unique fighter.

Power, Stamina, Speed and Defense:

- Power is how hard your fighter hits.
- Stamina is how well he stands up to the punches he’s going to take, and how fast he recovers.
- Speed is how fast he reacts to your button controls.
- Defense is how well he can protect himself.

Here’s where you set the skills that will keep your fighter on his feet. You can balance the levels equally, or beef up one or two at the expense of the others. You decide how capable you want your fighter to be in each category.

With power and speed, a boxer can easily overcome lower-ranked challengers. Stamina gives him staying power and good recovery. Defense protects him from the punishing blows of higher-ranked contenders while he looks for the opening in their guard.

Your boxer’s starting abilities are up to you. To help you set the levels, think about the opponents you’re going to choose, and how fast you want your fighter’s career to skyrocket.

Completing Your Boxer
Press Start when your fighter is complete. If he is the only custom fighter in the game, you’ll be asked if you want to create another one. Make your decision and press Start.

After creating one or two boxers, you continue on to the Boxer Selection screen.

Note: See pages 26-27 for more details on the Career Mode screens.
Promoting a Fight

In Career Mode, you always control the fighter you've just created, or the one whose career you've just resumed. You're his manager, and it's up to you to take him to the pinnacle of his sport.

On the Boxer Selection screen, you choose who your fighter will challenge in the ring. Press the D-Button UP/DOWN to scroll through the contenders.

For an evenly-matched fight, look for a contender whose skills compare fairly to your man's. If it's the first bout of a career, you can challenge a boxer who is one or two places above your fighter in rank. When your fighter wins a bout, he can challenge any boxer up to three places above him, or any boxer below him. If he loses the match, he can only challenge the next higher-ranked boxer or any boxer below him.

The number of rounds is set automatically. Three is the lowest number of rounds in a career bout. The higher the contender you choose is ranked, the more rounds the fight will last. A title bout against World Heavyweight Champion Evander Holyfield lasts 12 rounds.

Press Start to begin the bout. The fight screen and controls are described in the Fight Night! section, beginning on page 9.

Career fights are money fights, with a purse awarded to the winner. When you beat a higher-ranked opponent, you trade places with him in the rankings and your career is on the rise. If you lose a fight, you maintain your previous rank. If you're bested by a lower-ranked boxer, you also trade places with him, and sink even lower in the ratings.

Important: If you press Start to pause a career match and then decide to quit the game, you'll forfeit the fight and it will be counted as a loss on your record.

Training

To be a contender, you have to work out. You have to use the right equipment, vary your training, and eat right. That's how you pump up your power, stamina, speed and defense. And it's the only way to win!

Win or lose, you train after every fight (as long as Evander Holyfield considers you to be pro-boxer material). You go to the Training screen straight from the ring.
If you win your first fight, you can choose three training items. If you lose, you can choose two. From then on, whenever you win a bout you get three more choices; if you lose, you also lose a training choice. (If you lose more than three fights in a row, you're forced to retire.)

Use the D-Button to highlight each item you choose. When an item is highlighted, it adds green segments to the red bars that measure your skill levels. The green segments show what you'll gain during training. Press Button A, B or C to select a highlighted choice. Highlight the choice again and press a button to cancel it so you can make another selection.

After making all choices, press Start to train. When training is complete, you'll return to the Boxer Selection screen where you can promote your next fight.

Challenge Fights

A boxing career is a life-long test. Fighting your way up the ranks means that you're constantly competing against men who are better than you. And once you've reached a high standing, what happens? You lose a couple of fights and younger, less-skilled but aggressive fighters begin to challenge you!

The Challenge screen appears after the Training screen when you're top-ranked but have lost your last few bouts. Challengers will be from one to four places below you in rank. On the Challenge screen, you'll be asked to accept or reject a fight offer. Accepting the challenge takes you to the ring. If you reject the challenge, you'll step down to the younger fighter's rank, and you'll be given the option to retire.

Aging and Forced Retirement

When your boxer is young, he can train to keep himself in top condition. But after about 25 career fights, he begins aging. He starts losing his abilities with each bout, and his skills decrease faster than he can keep them up with training.

All boxers retire sooner or later. The event occurs in several ways:

- If a young fighter loses three bouts in a row, Evander Holyfield tells him that he's not tough enough for pro boxing. His career ends.
- A high-ranked but aging fighter will begin to lose fights, even though he's had an honorable career. If he loses three fights in succession, Evander Holyfield advises him that it's time to retire. His career also ends.
- All boxers are automatically retired after completing 40 fights.
The Ultimate Fighter

If you're good enough, your career can take you to the top and beyond it. Each fight you win advances your rank and your earnings.

If your boxer can top Evander Holyfield's career winnings of $50 million, he becomes "The Greatest." His name, picture, fight record and earnings are recorded on The Greatest screen, which you can see from the Main Menu. (For details, see page 28.)

Once your boxer reaches this height of fame, his record remains even after you retire him. Other contenders must better his career winnings in order to take their own place as "The Greatest."

Simultaneous Careers

In Evander Holyfield's "Real Deal" Boxing, two custom-made boxers can pursue their careers at the same time. They can even challenge and fight each other.

To start simultaneous careers, create two fighters on the Boxer Creation screen (see pages 16-19). Or, if the fighters are already created, resume both careers from the Career Mode screen (see pages 26-27).

The boxers fight in alternate bouts during their careers. First one boxer has a match, and then the other fights. Then the first boxer returns to train and fight again, followed by the second boxer doing the same. The pattern continues until one boxer either quits, retires or is forced out of boxing.

In 2 Player games, the two custom boxers can spar with each other. Both players should make boxers on the Boxer Creation screen. Or, if the two boxers already exist, you can resume both careers.

Player 1's boxer will fight first. His opponent can be any other fighter of similar rank, including Player 2's boxer.

Remember that the boxer on the left is always operated with Control Pad 1. Switch Control Pads when it's Player 2's turn. Now Player 2 uses Control Pad 1. If the chosen opponent is Player 1's boxer, Player 1 will use Control Pad 2.

Important: Custom-made boxers can have a designated set of button controls. That way, when two players switch Control Pads, they don't have to change their controls. See page 29 for details.

Final Fight Tips from “The Real Deal”

- Throw straight jabs to keep your opponent at a distance.
- Don’t always charge. Backpedaling can be a strategic defense. Hit and run!
- Crouching makes your face vulnerable. Always block when you’re not attacking.
- Sparring in Exhibition Mode is excellent practice. Work on your punches and experiment with different combinations. You can get better!
- Never forget: you can be the champ. You can be “The Greatest.” Work on it!
